

WOMEN WHO CHARM

HEALTH IS THE FIRST ESSENTIAL

It Helps Women to Win and Hold Men's Admiration, Respect and Love

Woman's greatest gift is the power to inspire admiration, respect, and love. There is a beauty in health which is more attractive to men than mere regularity of feature.

Mrs. Chas. F. Brown

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, should be a woman's constant study. At the first indication of ill-health, painful or irregular menstruation, headache or backache, secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begin its use.

Mrs. Chas. F. Brown, Vice-President Mothers' Club, 21 Cedar Terrace, Hot Springs, Ark., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"For nine years I dragged through a miserable existence, suffering with inflammation and falling of the womb, and worn out with pain and weariness. I one day noticed a statement by a woman suffering as I was, but who had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I determined to try it. At the end of three months I was a different woman. Every one remarked about it, and my husband fell in love with me all over again. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound built up my entire system, cured the womb trouble, and I felt like a new woman. I am sure it will make every suffering woman strong, well and happy, as it has me."

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular menstruation, backache, bloating (or flatulence), leucorrhoea, falling, inflammation or ulceration of the uterus, ovarian troubles, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, or nervous prostration may be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

An excellent remedy for hiccoughs in young or old is granulated sugar moistened with vinegar.

OUT OF THE ORDINARY

He Knew It All.

Oh, once there lived upon this earth, In a long forgotten land, A man who vowed that women He had learned to understand.

He wrote down all their qualities, And by the rule of three He managed to evolve at last A wonderful theory!

He knew when they would laugh or cry— He only had to count!— He knew when they would smile or sigh, He knew not only when, but why, And the exact amount!

He knew just what a woman meant— This scholar so astute!— When she called him "magnificent" And baby hippos "cute."

He knew just when her no meant yes; He knew, indeed—oh pause!— He knew the magic meaning Of the little word "because."

He knew it all, or thought he did— Oh comedy of life!— Until one day he married A delightful little wife.

Alas! Alack! Oh, mercy me! Now what do you suppose? She wouldn't live by rule of three, She laughed at all his theory, And led him by the nose.

Knives for the One-Armed.

"What is that thing over there?" asked a man on a high stool at a lunch counter.

The thing he was pointing at was shaped like a sickle, had a handle, and at the very tip of the blade was a pronged fork.

"That?" said the waiter. "Why, that's a one-armed knife. Ever see one before?" And he passed it over the counter for inspection. "Nearly all restaurants keep them in their stock of cutlery nowadays."

"You see, the one-armed man can't cut his meat with the same motion that you or I use. He must bear down on his steak or chop, and to make the work easier for him some wise chap invented this sickle shaped knife with a fork attached."

"If you'll notice, it is made on the principle of the half circular cutter harnessmakers use. To be sure, we have to keep them sharp or their usefulness would be gone."—New York Sun.

Born on Field of Waterloo.

There was recently living in a town in Germany a woman who was born actually on the field of Waterloo while the battle was raging. Her mother, an Irishwoman of noble family, had married a German officer and followed him to the wars. She was present at every battle in the Peninsula in which he fought. Then she went into Belgium, and on the night before Waterloo she, with another woman, lay out for hours in the wet under trees and hedges. While the battle was still raging she was taken ill, and was carried into a shed, where her babe was born. It was a terrible cradle for the little one; it had been used as a field hospital, and all around lay the shattered limbs which the surgeons had amputated. But child and mother thrived. The baby was christened "Waterloo," and lived to marry and settle down in Hanover.

Oldest German Is Gaspard Griesser.

The senior inhabitant of the German empire is an old man named Gaspard Griesser, who lives in the village of Lorsch, in Hesse.

He does not know his exact age, because the registers of the village do not go as far back as 1798, the year in which he was born; but the records of the parish church prove that he was baptized in December of that year, so that he is now certainly 111 years of age.

Gaspard can see, hear and eat well and can walk without support. He spends his days smoking his pipe and he has never left his native village.

A man who was 11 years old when Napoleon I was crowned emperor of the French, and who might have fought at Leipzig, though he makes no claim to this, is something quite out of the common.—Sketch.

Held Court in Railroad Car.

A short time ago when a train on the Russian railway from Tashkend stopped at Tchernalevo a well-dressed man got into a carriage marked "no smoking allowed" and, taking out his case, began to smoke a cigarette. The other passengers politely called his attention to the fact that he was not in a smoking carriage, but he paid no heed to them and went on smoking. It so happened that one of the travelers was a justice of the peace, who thereupon got up, took his chain of office out of his bag and declared the carriage a court of law. The smoker was found guilty and fined fifty rubles and, as he would not give his name and declared that he had no money, he was imprisoned in the guard's van until he paid the fine.

Ancient Book Long Hidden.

Clyde A. McIntosh of Fort Fairfield, Me., has one of the two volumes of the first edition of John Locke's "Essay on the Understanding," published in 1689. The book was obtained from a poor farmer in Cape Breton. In adding them the second volume dropped down into the wall of the unfinished house, between the inside and outside boarding, and it was not deemed worth while to ferret it out from its hiding place.

Musical Watch Betrays Thief.

A Bordeaux jeweler has added to the gaiety of Parisians this week by his experience in Paris. He met a pretty woman on the boulevard, and dined and wine in a cabinet particulier, after which he missed his watch and his companion at the same time.

The watch had a most costly music-box attachment. The jeweler was in the act of complaining to a policeman in the street about the theft. He admitted he couldn't describe his companion except in a hazy way, when suddenly he heard an air from "La Traviata" as a girl passed.

"There's my watch now!" he cried. The girl was arrested and the watch was found in her possession.—New York World.

Japs Read Little Fiction.

During 1903 of the books called for at the imperial library of Japan 166,677 volumes, or 21.6 per cent, related to mathematics, science and medicine; 153,711, or 20 per cent, to literature and language; theology and religion 12,486, or 1.6 per cent, while 18 per cent of the applications were for books on history and geography. Fiction finds no place in the classified table of books in demand by readers in this Japanese library.

Freak Calf in Vermont.

Elbert Solger of Bridgewater, Vt., has a cow that has given birth to a strange calf. The body is about normal size, but the head is shaped much like a bulldog's. Its ears are short and rounded like a cat's. Its legs are about 12 inches long, the hind ones being perfect, but the forward ones are without joints at the knees. The tail, which is very short resembles the tail of a lynx.

Novel and Useful Present.

Mrs. Sarah B. Lund, an invalid Nashua, N. H., woman was remembered by a most unique and valuable New Year's gift. Her friends got together and made up a bag which contained a package of some sort of useful presents for every day of the year, the intent being that each day the recipient should thrust her hand into the bag and draw forth some reminder of her friends.

Chance for Romance.

About ten years ago a little girl at Parkhurst, Me., scratched her initials on a cent and spent it for candy. A young man at Caribou who happened to know the young woman's initials got hold of the cent last week and returned it to her by letter.
